Instructor Led Training Online

Rizikon offers a comprehensive catalog of health and safety training courses. Our goal is to provide effective and consistent education programs that assist our clients in the reduction of safety incidents, achieve and maintain regulatory based training compliance, and support a positive safety culture - whether they are logging in from work or at home.

In all our health and safety training materials, we offer compelling content that brings training to life. Over the years, Rizikon has helped thousands prevent injuries by making safe behavior and workplace conditions part of their work culture.

Classes are coordinated with the clients schedule and needs in mind. Rizikon has administrative access to the most commonly used online meeting platforms. We are flexible to use any platform that the client wishes to utilize.

Our professional instructors draw on their own extensive experience in safety, management and operations, offering real-life examples that drive home the importance of safety in the minds of our clients and their employees.

Instructor Led Training Online

Rizikon offers instructor led safety training classes online for all of our courses that do not have a required hands-on component.

The classes are designed to allow for real-time interaction between the students and the instructor. This allows for questions to be asked, answers to be given, and workplace scenarios to be discussed between all of the participants. The presentation material has been designed to be visually stimulating to increase and maintain the student's level of interest during the conduction of the class.
